Weather of Concern

Northern California

- A series of storms will be impacting Northern California this week.
 - Flash Flood Watch in effect at 0300 this morning for the Valley, Rocky, Jerusalem Fire burn scars, Lake County. Rainfall rates with this next system as the front moves through along with the recent rain over the burn area may be enough to generate debris flows.

 - As of 0950 hours on 01/06/15, the Sacramento River at Tisdale Weir is at monitor stage (Sutter County).

 - A Flood Warning was issued on 01/05/16 at 2028 hours for the San Diego River at Fashion Valley. Water levels have since receded; however, if bands of heavier showers or thunderstorms were to track inland through Mission Valley this afternoon, it could be sufficient to push the San Diego River back above flood stage at Fashion Valley this evening.
 - As of 0950 hours on 01/06/16, the San Diego River at Fashion Valley is above flood stage (San Diego County).
 - As of 0950 hours on 01/06/16, the Santa Margarita River at Ysidora is at monitor stage (San Diego County).

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A series of offshore low pressure systems and frontal boundaries will produce periods of rain, high elevation snow, and gusty southerly winds through Thursday.

Medford Weather:

The bulk of the precipitation for the Shasta area will come between now and around noon, and unlike the last system, this one appears to be a bit colder. Thus as precipitation rates increase, snow levels are expected to be even lower than yesterday. This should eventually bring the heavy snow right down into Mt. Shasta City proper this morning.

Reno Weather:

The next winter storm is moving into the Sierras today bringing additional snow as well as travel impacts. Another, weaker storm may arrive on Saturday before a ridge of high pressure returns next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Frontal passage this morning will bring a period of heavy rain with numerous showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and evening. Showers linger into Thursday along with continued high surf conditions along the coast.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Active weather pattern continues to impact Northern California this week. Another round of breezy winds, mountain snow and valley rain for today and tonight with showers on Thursday. Friday is expected to be a dry day in most areas with another round of rain and mountain snow expected Saturday.

Hanford Weather:

Another strong Pacific storm system will bring rain and mountain snow to Central California for most of this Wednesday. A succession of storm systems tracking eastward from the Pacific will follow and bring wet weather at times to much of the Central California interior for the remainder of the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles weather:

A series of storms will bring widespread rain, isolated thunderstorms, mountain snow and gusty southerly winds at times through the end of the week. Colder air aloft will build lowering snow levels to near the Tejon Pass over the Grapevine tonight through Friday.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

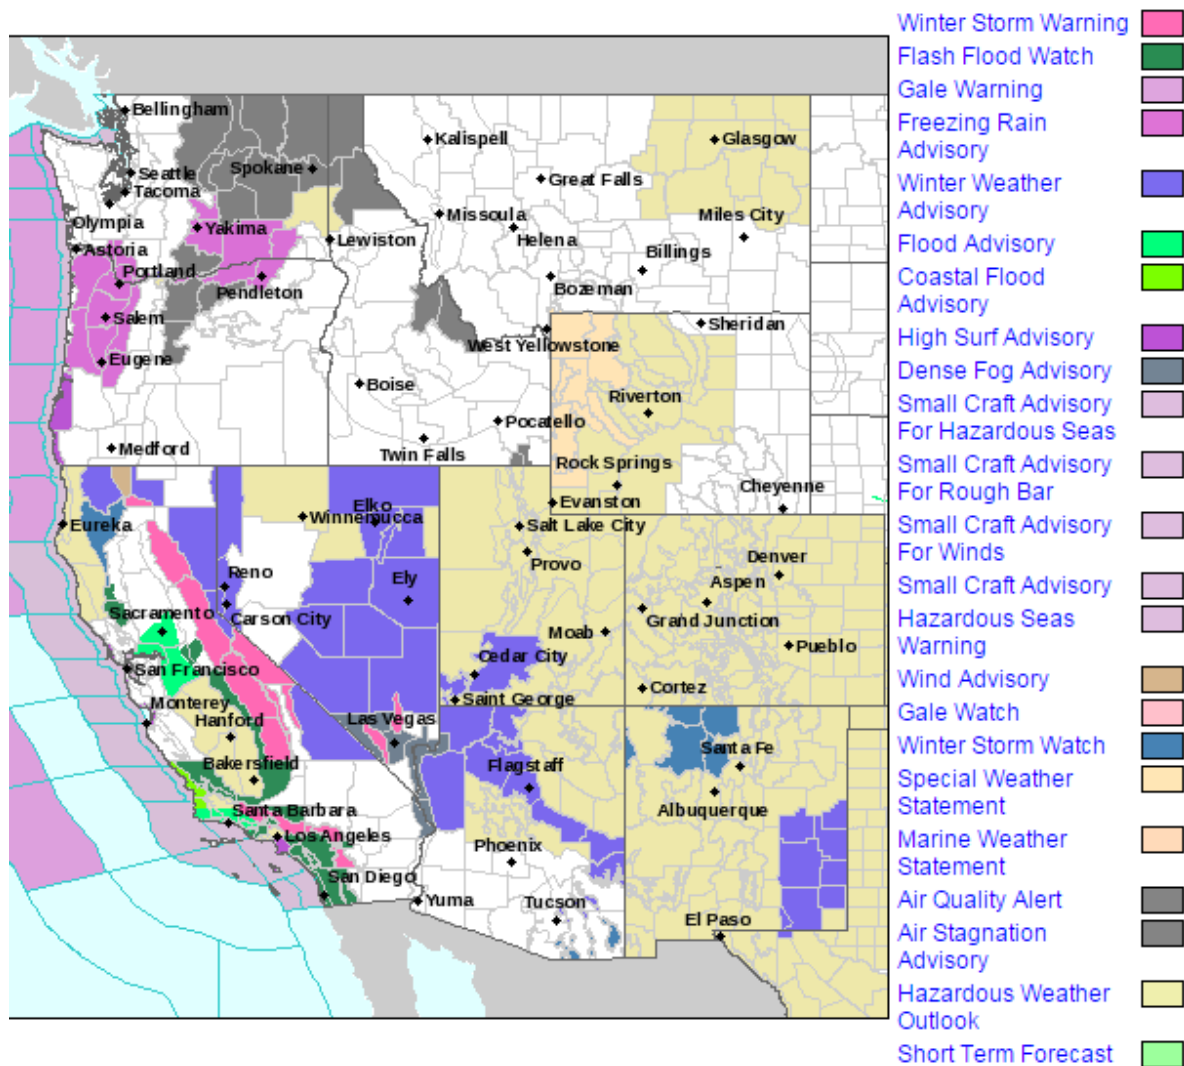

A strong low latitude Pacific jet stream will bring a series of storms into Southern California through Sunday with periods of moderate to heavy precipitation, gusty southwest to west winds, and high surf at the beaches. Dry weather is expected from late Sunday into early Wednesday.

Southeast California Weather:

Another storm will move in today and Thursday bringing more rain and snow. Snow will begin in the Sierra this morning with rain and snow spreading east later today through Thursday. One or two more systems are in the pipeline for the weekend and early next week bringing more unsettled weather conditions.
